What does 'Economic downturn' mean?

Is going to the cinema cheaper than to a restaurant?

Will cinemas disappear sometime?

Cinema audiences still rising

The latest cinema audience figures, which appear (1) (show) an increase of twelve per cent on the same period last year, seem (2) (indicate) that the economic downturn has not stopped people (3) (go) to watch their favourite films. Film critic Nick Kaminski says: 'These days people are trying (4) (spend) less money, and as an evening out at the cinema is much cheaper than, say, going to a restaurant, many of them are choosing (5) (see) a film rather than have a meal out. I expect the figures will keep on (6) (rise).'

Let's talk about movies!
